CELEBRATING EXCELLENCE

An Initiative of Dainik Bhaskar & DNA

Dainik Bhaskar invites nominations for the category of Social Change Agent and Impact Creator - Civil Servant. These award categories have been instituted in the belief that both the state and society have an equal role to play in nation building.

These awards are an extension of our annual recognition of Public Sector Undertakings who continue to play a vital role in India's economic progress.

In the category of Impact Creator - Civil Servant there are six (6) awards to acknowledge the distinguished work done by civil servants in any one of the following fields-

- Rural Development
- Urban Development
- Health, Water and Sanitation
- Governance and Reforms
- Education
- Innovative implementation of any project (not falling into any other categories)

About Dainik Bhaskar

Dainik Bhaskar is the largest newspaper group in India publishing four newspapers in as many languages with 63 editions spread over 13 states and a readership of 18.1 million.

As a newspaper for the masses, we are aware of the impact and role that committed individuals and organizations have on our country. We also recognize the role that civil servants play in making real the ideals of socio-economic change.

It is our belief that innovation in delivery and implementation in all fields will lead us to a just and equitable society.

Award Categories

There are six fields of work in the category of Impact Creator - Civil Servants.

1. Rural Development: This category of award is for those who have delivered schemes that have raised people's socio-economic standards in rural areas
2. Education: This category of award is for those who have delivered schemes by which the number of children attending school from socio-economically disadvantaged families in rural and urban areas has increased; and also their drop rates have decreased.
3. Urban Development: This category of award is for those who have delivered projects that have led to socio-economic inclusion and the improvement of life of people in urban areas.
4. Health, Water and Sanitation: This category of award is for those who have delivered projects which have not only reduced occurrence of disease and death but have also led to behavioral changes in the community.
5. Governance and Reforms: This category of award is for those who have delivered projects that improve accountability, transparency and ease of citizen's access to government departments.
6. Innovative implementation of any project (not falling into any other categories): This category is for those who have used unique systems/techniques to ensure the successful implementation of a government project/programme.

Parameters

The jury will consider the following parameters in their evaluation of nominations.

Leadership / Role Model: The jury will be looking for your role as a leader where in you not only gave direction to the project but also took the community along.

Social Equity, Impact and Criticality: The jury will want to know whether your project has bridged the divide of the two India's by improving social equity. The relevance and importance of the project within the community will also be considered. This could also include efforts during manmade and natural emergencies.

Innovation: In this parameter the jury will want to know the innovative techniques/practices that were used while implementing your project so as to achieve its desired goals.

Commitment to the cause (courage of conviction) / Hardship of the working environment:

It is not always easy to implement projects. There are political/social/natural and other factors that make the delivery of the project difficult. How did you overcome such challenges? The jury would also like to know about the challenges you faced.

Transparency and Participation: The jury will be looking at information sharing and its process in this parameter. How did you share information with various people and departments? What kind of information did you share? What kind of participation was there from the affected population?

Sustainability and Replicability: The jury will also want to know how the project has been accepted by the community. The question that the jury seeks answers to is whether after you leave the project will continue and if so how? Further, has the project's successful implementation inspired other people to implement similar projects?
